

Mediasite and closed captioning

Multimedia webcasts provide students and employees an invaluable learning tool as they watch and replay presentations, lectures or training materials on their own terms, anytime anywhere.

Closed captioning enhances the multimedia experience, making content accessible to viewers with hearing disabilities. It also provides improved access for viewers with English as a second language (ESL) and enhances the playback experience for users with other learning disabilities or individuals watching in noisy environments. Plus, the ability to search closed captions with key words or phrases makes all learners more efficient as they quickly pinpoint important information they need in presentations.

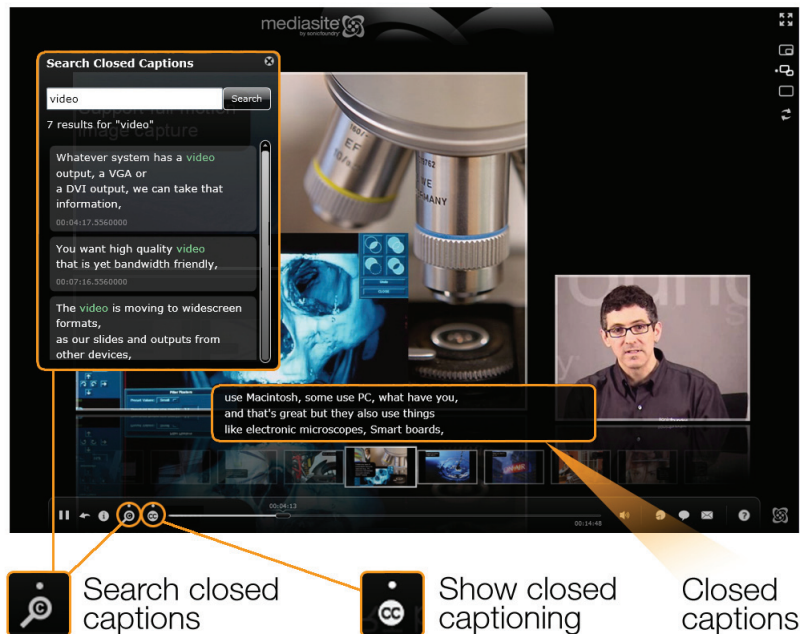

Several federal and state mandates now require that media be made accessible to all users regardless of their disabilities. Mediasite streamlines the captioning process so your organization can meet these requirements and provide your learners a richer, more meaningful online experience.

Mediasite provides two ways to easily add closed captions to any recorded content: automated and standard captioning.

Automated closed captioning

Use Mediasite Captioning Manager to set caption requirements for entire folders of presentations, collections of presentations published across multiple folders or for single presentations. Mediasite automates the complete captioning workflow:

- Automatically uploads your recorded media files to Automatic Sync Technologies' captioning service
- Automatically associates returned closed captions to their corresponding presentations
- Immediately displays closed captions in the Mediasite Player for your viewers

Standard closed captioning

You can also use the Mediasite Captioning Manager to download your presentation media files locally. This provides the flexibility to send your files to the captioning service provider of your choice or generate your own closed captions in-house. Either way, once your captions are ready, simply upload the files to the corresponding presentations, and Mediasite immediately displays them in the Mediasite Player.
